

Declaration regarding compliance with the regulations, participation, and assumption of risk in the ClimbHouse Climbing and Adventure Hall

Welcome to Climb House, our indoor adventure hall with courses for both adults and children!

Climb House is built upon a concept that originated in the West. Our aim is to bring climbing and sports closer to major cities and provide a sporty and enjoyable alternative for leisure time.

With over 10 years of experience in industrial climbing and working at heights, we have built similar centers in Germany, England, Scotland, Ireland, Finland, and France. The safety equipment used in climbing and adventure courses is sourced from authorized and certified manufacturers. These are annually inspected by a team of experts following strict protocols.

Would you like to know how we ensure your children's safety?

- We work with the safest equipment manufacturer in the world.
- Self-securing systems are ensured at 2 points.
- The securing carabiner is 3-lock, meaning it requires 3 steps to unlock, thus avoiding accidental complete unlocking.
- Climbing accessories are UIAA certified (International Climbing and Mountaineering Federation).
- Each route is equipped with a locking system, so climbers cannot start the route until they are secured.

Our climbing and adventure trails are accessible to all individuals aged 4 and above, weighing between 15 and 150 kg for climbing routes, with an 80 kg limit for the zipline route and 100 kg for the other two routes. Participants should be in good physical and mental health, enabling them to overcome all obstacles on the trails according to the rules set by the park staff.

Attention! Customers have access to the Climb House Adventure Room at their own risk, after reading and understanding this Regulation. For minors, consent for participation will be provided by accompanying adults.

All participants are required to read and follow to the following rules:

- Our climbing and adventure trails are accessible to all individuals aged 4 and above, weighing between 15 – 150 kg, provided they are in good physical and mental health to overcome all obstacles on the trails, following the rules set by the park staff.
- For children under 4 years old, there are available routes, including 2 ground-level adventure trails, 1 dark ride, and a boulder climbing area, all guided by our instructors.
- Participation in all activities requires appropriate footwear (clean-soled sports shoes).
- Both the gearing up and gearing down processes are exclusively carried out by a ClimbHouse instructor before entering the facility. Any alteration made to the equipment by the participant leads to their or their guardian's assumption of responsibility for any resulting damages.
- Minors must be accompanied by an adult, who will be responsible for their safety and behavior throughout the chosen activities.
- Minors over 9 years old may be unsupervised by their parent/legal guardian only after ensuring that the minor understands the safety system and adheres to the facility regulations.
- The minimum weight allowed for participants on elevated trails is 15 kg, and the maximum is 150 kg.
- The maximum weight supported by the Climb Slide is 80 kg.
- Wearing a harness is mandatory on all trails except for the slide and ground-level ones.
- Wearing a helmet is mandatory throughout the entire presence in the facility.
- When climbing trails are closed with orange boxes, wait for the instructor's approval, who will secure the climber. Upon descent, wait for the instructor's assistance to unlock your carabiner and indicate the next trail.
- When the locking triangles are on the floor with the yellow side up, do not stand on them. The position of the yellow triangles on the floor indicates that another person is climbing the trail, and descending over the person standing in this area could lead to accidents.

- The red floor also marks the area where standing is prohibited.
- Gearing up and gearing down is only done by Climb House staff.
- Access to the climbing hall and the starting point for adventure trails is only allowed in the presence of Climb House staff.
- While climbing, the belay position should be between the arms, and the rope should be taut. If a loop is noticed, the instructor should be notified.
- It is strictly forbidden to traverse the trails horizontally while climbing. Climbers must stick to the chosen climbing route.
- If you fail to adhere to the rules presented during the briefing by authorized staff, you will be stopped from participating.
- Participants will not be refunded if they are stopped from participating due to rule violations. All participants must contribute to the safety and smooth running of the activity through their actions and attitude. Injury to a climber by another is the direct responsibility of those involved, with the instructor/company being exempt.
- In case of damage to protective equipment (harness, helmet), the cost will be borne by the person who rented it or by the parents/guardians.
- If, after the climbing session has started, the participant feels they can no longer participate in the activities, the paid amount will not be refunded.
- Gradual traversal of trails is recommended, as advised by instructors.
- The use of both carabiners is mandatory throughout the adventure trails.
- Trail overcrowding should be avoided, with only one person per game and a maximum of 3 people per platform recommended.
- Once the activity has started, participants are not allowed to carry: phones, cameras, jewelry, sunglasses, bulky accessories, or other items to prevent accidents, for which they are directly responsible.
- During the activity, long hair must be tied back to avoid reduced visibility.
- Smoking is prohibited, as well as any other activity that could distract the participant from the trail.
- Access to the trail is not permitted if you have consumed alcoholic beverages, substances prohibited by law, or if you suffer from various medical conditions including, but not limited to: fainting, cardiac arrhythmias, heart disease, hypertension, phobias, episodes of loss of consciousness, etc. ClimbHouse does not assume responsibility for any incident that occurs within the park resulting from a pre-existing medical condition, failure to follow staff instructions, or failure to follow attraction usage instructions.
